SECTION 1: THEORY FOR CLASSROOM DISCUSSION

Contract of Bailment and Pledge are special types of contracts given under Sec 148 to 181 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

- 1) Concept of Bailment is covered from Sec 148 to 171 &
- 2) Concept of Pledge is covered from Sec 172 to 181.

CONTRACT OF BAILMENT (SEC 148 TO 171)

Q.No.1. Define contract of Bailment?	(C) (NEW SM, OLD SM, OLD PM, M11 - 1M, M15 - 1M)
--------------------------------------	--

MEANING OF CONTRACT OF BAILMENT:

- 1) Bailment means handing over or change of possession.

- 2) As per Section 148 of the Act, 'Bailment' is
 - a) The delivery of goods by one person to another person
 - b) For some purpose,
 - c) Upon a contract that the goods shall be returned or otherwise disposed off
 - d) When the purpose is accomplished,
 - e) According to the directions of the person delivering them.
- 3) The person delivering the goods is called 'Bailor'.
- 4) The person to whom goods are delivered is called 'Bailee'
- 5) And the transaction is known as 'Bailment'.
- 6) The property which is bailed (delivered) is called "Bailed property".

EXAMPLES OF BAILMENT TRANSACTIONS:

- 1) Goods given to a friend for his own use without any charge.
- 2) Providing goods on rent.
- 3) Delivering goods to a creditor as a security for loan.
- 4) Delivering goods for repair with or without remuneration.
- 5) Delivering goods for carriage.

Q.No.2. Essential characteristics of Bailment (Or) Distinguishing features of Bailment contract.

(B)

First write the definition of Bailment.

ESSENTIAL CHARACTERISTICS OF BAILMENT (SEC 148):

- 1) CONTRACT: In Bailment, delivery of goods is based upon a contract. Contract can be either express or implied.
- 2) PROPERTY MUST BE MOVABLE: Bailment will apply for movable goods only but not for immovable goods or money.
- 3) DELIVERY OF GOODS FOR SOME SPECIFIC PURPOSE: The principle of Bailment is "delivery of goods by one person to another person" for some specific purpose.
- 4) CHANGE OF POSSESSION AND CUSTODY OF GOODS BUT NOT OWNERSHIP:
 - a) In case of Bailment, possession of goods changes. It may be done by physical delivery or symbolic delivery or constructive delivery.
 - b) In Bailment, Bailor continues to be the owner of goods as there is no change of ownership.
 - c) If a person is in custody of goods without possession, it does not become bailment.
- 5) OBLIGATION TO RETURN OR DISPOSE OF GOODS: When the purpose of delivery is accomplished, the goods must be either
 - a) Returned to the Bailor physically (in its original or altered form, as said by the bailor) or
 - b) Disposed of according to the directions of the Bailor.
 - c) Bailee cannot deliver some other goods, even if such other goods have higher value.

SIMILAR QUESTIONS:

- 1) Examine whether the following transactions constitute a contract of 'Bailment' under the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872:
 - a) V parks his car at a parking lot, locks it, and keeps the keys with himself.
 - b) Seizure of goods by customs authorities

ANS:

- a) Mere custody of goods does not mean possession. For a Bailment to exist Bailor must give possession of Bailed goods to Bailee and he must accept it. In the given case car is not considered to be delivered as the car keys are still lying with V. Hence the transaction is not Bailment. Of course, it is still a valid contract as per Indian Contract Act.
- b) In this case the possession of goods is transferred to the Customs authorities and hence it is treated as valid delivery of goods as per the provisions of Bailment. Hence, Bailment exists. (State of Gujarat Vs Menon Mohammad)

2) Does depositing of ornaments in a Bank locker considered as Bailment?

ANS: In this case bank is not getting complete possession of goods from the customer. Even after depositing the ornaments, customer still has control on the same as he possesses the keys of the locker. Since delivery of goods is not complete, this transaction cannot be treated as Bailment. Of course, it is a valid contract as per the provisions of the Indian Contract Act. But the provisions of Bailment will not apply to this case.

3) 'X' has given money to 'Y'. You are required to state the following.

Can this transaction be considered as Bailment?

Will your answer be different in case X has given boat to Y rather than cash?

ANS: No. Bailment does not apply to money and immovable property.

If Boat is given for a specific purpose upon condition that it has to be returned after fulfilment of purpose then it is considered as Bailment.

4) Mr. Ahuja has delivered gold ring to Mr. Bose on a condition to return it after 5 days. Later, Mr. Boss said that he will deliver a diamond ring, which is more costly compared with gold ring to Mr. Ahuja. Can he do so?

ANS: No. The bailee cannot deliver the goods other than the goods bailed to him, even if such other goods have a higher value.

5) Mr. Ahuja has delivered diamond to Mr. Bose. Ahuja said that the diamond is to be sold after 15 days to Mr. Kaul. Mr. Ahuja argues that this transaction is not Bailment as he is not getting back the diamond. What is your opinion?

ANS: The given transaction is considered as Bailment even if goods are not returned back to Bailor. It is sufficient for Bailee to dispose of the goods as per the instructions of the Bailor. Hence the argument of Ahuja is not correct.

6) A has taken a mobile phone from Big M mobile showroom. It was agreed that an amount of Rs. 1,000 shall be paid monthly for 24 months. A has paid without any dues for all 24 months. Big M argued that it is bailment contract. You are required to state the essential characteristics of bailment contract and comment on Big M argument.

ANS: Write the essential elements of bailment and conclude that Big M is not correct in their approach as ownership is transferred after payment of last instalment.

7) The purpose of bailment has been fulfilled. What should the bailee do with the goods of bailor?

ANS: Write Point e alone in the above question.

CONTRACT OF PLEDGE (SEC 172 TO 181)

Q.No.12. What is meant by Pledge or Pawn? What are the essential features of Pledge?

(B) (NEW SM, OLD SM, N98 - 10M)

PLEDGE:

- Sec.172 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, provides that, "the Bailment of goods as security for payment of a debt or performance of a promise" is called 'Pledge'.
- The person who pledges or bails is known as Pledgor or Pawnor and the Bailee is known as Pledgee or Pawnee.
- In pledge there is no change in ownership of the property.
- Pledge is a special kind of Bailment. All essential elements of Bailment must be present in case of contract of pledge also.

ESSENTIAL FEATURES OF PLEDGE:

- DELIVERY: There must be delivery of goods from Pawnor to the Pawnee
- AS SECURITY: There must be delivery of goods as security for payment of debt / performance of a promise.
- SUBJECT MATTER: Goods must be the subject matter of the contract of Pledge.
- MUST BE IN EXISTENCE: The goods pledged must be in existence.

Thus, every contract of Pledge is Bailment but every contract of Bailment need not be Pledge.

SIMILAR QUESTIONS:

- Discuss whether pledge is a special type of contract of Bailment.

Yes, pledge is a special type of Bailment. All the essential elements of Bailment must be present in the contract of Pledge also. In case of Pledge, possession of goods is transferred from Pledgor to the Pledgee for the purpose of security to the loan amount borrowed. Once the loan amount is repaid then automatically the possession of goods will come back to Pledgor. Just like Bailment, pledge can be made for movable goods only. The essential elements of pledge are similar to that of Bailment.

SECTION 3: PRACTICAL QUESTIONS FOR CLASSROOM DISCUSSION

Q.No.1. Mrs. X delivered her old gold jewellery to Mr. Y, a goldsmith, for the purpose of making new jewellery out of it. Every evening she used to receive the unfinished jewellery to put it into a box kept at Mr. Y's shop. She kept the key of that box with herself. One night, the jewellery was stolen from the box. What is the nature of this Contract?

PROVISION: Section 148 of Indian Contract Act 1872 defines 'Bailment' as the delivery of goods by one person to another for some purpose, upon a contract that they shall, when the purpose is accomplished, be returned or otherwise disposed of according to the direction of the person delivering them.

According to Section 149 of the Indian Contract Act 1872, the delivery to the bailee may be made by doing anything which has the effect of putting the goods in the possession of the intended bailee or of any person authorised to hold them on his behalf. Thus, delivery is necessary to constitute bailment.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION: Delivery is necessary to constitute a valid contract of Bailment. Mere keeping of the box at Y's shop, when X herself took away the key cannot amount to delivery as per the meaning of the provision in Sec 149. In this case there is no contract of Bailment because Mrs. X has not delivered the complete possession of goods as the key is kept with her every evening.

Q.No.2 A hires a horse from B. During the bailment period, the horse falls ill without any negligence on A's part. A incurred medical Expenses in Connection with the treatment of the horse A claimed reimbursement of medical expenses incurred by him. B refuses to pay. Discuss the Liability of B.

PROVISION: As per Sec 158 of the Indian Contract act 1872, Bailor shall repay to the Bailee all necessary (i.e. ordinary and extraordinary) expenses incurred by him for the purpose of Bailment in case of gratuitous bailment

In case of non-gratuitous bailment, it is sufficient for Bailor to repay extraordinary expenses incurred by Bailee, for the purpose of Bailment.

ANALYSIS: In the present case, A hires a horse from B. A (bailee) receives custody charges from B (bailor). Since it is a non-gratuitous Bailment, Bailor is not liable to repay the bailee the ordinary expenses of feeding the horse. During the Bailment period, the horse falls ill without any negligence on his part. A incurred medical expenses in connection with the treatment of the horse.

CONCLUSION: On the above analysis and provision of law, B (Bailor) must repay the A (Bailee) the medical expenses incurred in connection with the treatment of the horse, these being extraordinary expenses.

Q.No.3. A, a watch repairer, repaired B's watch for a total charge of Rs.250. Before B took delivery of the watch, the shop caught fire through no fault of A, and B's watch was destroyed. Is B entitled to compensation for the loss of watch? Is A entitled to remuneration for the work done?

PROVISION: As per Sec 151 of the Indian Contract Act 1872, Bailee is bound to take care of goods bailed to him as a man of ordinary prudence. In the absence of special contract, he is not responsible for any special loss or destruction or deterioration of the goods bailed.

ANALYSIS: In the present case, A (Bailee) is not responsible for any special loss, since the goods are destroyed without bailee's fault. A is entitled to remuneration for services performed on the goods destroyed.

CONCLUSION: In the given instance 'A' is entitled to get his repair charges for the work he performed prior to fire. B is not entitled to compensation for the loss of watch

Q.No.4. M lends a sum of Rs.5,000 to B, on the security of 2 shares of a Limited Company on 1st April 2007. On 15th June 2007, the company issued 2 bonus shares. B repays the loan amount of Rs.5,000 along with interest but M returns only 2 shares which were pledged and refuses to give the 2 bonus shares. Advise B in the light of the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

(OLD PM, RTP M17, N08 - 5M)

(Or)

Certain shares in a limited company were pledged by the debtor with a bank as a security for loan advanced by the bank to him. Subsequently, the company declared dividend on the shares and also issued Bonus shares. The Bank claimed that it was entitled to retain the amount of dividend and also bonus shares issued by the company. Discuss the claim of the bank.

PROVISION: As per Sec. 163 of the Indian contract Act 1872 says that the Bailor is entitled to increase of profit from goods Bailed. In the absence of any contract to the contrary, the Bailee is bound to deliver to the Bailor or according to his directions, any increase of profit which may have accrued from the goods Bailed.

ANALYSIS: (Applicability of the Law) – The Bailee is bound to return the natural increase or profits accruing to the goods to the Bailor, during the period of Bailment.

CONCLUSION: On the above analysis and provision of Law, when there is an increase to the shares lent to M during the Bailment then it is the duty of the Bailee (M) to return the increase to the Bailor (B). In simple words, B is entitled to get bonus shares from M.

Q.No.5. Mr. Dhannaseth delivers a rough blue sapphire to a jeweller, to be cut and polished. The jeweller carries out the job accordingly. However, now Mr. Dhannaseth refuses to make the payment and wants his blue sapphire back. The jeweller denies the delivery of goods without payment. Examine whether the jeweler can hold blue sapphire. Give your answer as per the provisions of the Contract Act, 1872.

(MTP M18 (N), MTP N19(OLD))

PROVISION: As per Sec 170 of The Indian Contract Act 1872 lays down that where the bailee has rendered any service involving the exercise of labour/ skill in respect of the goods bailed, there he has a right to retain such goods in his possession until he receives due remuneration for the services, he has rendered in respect of them. This right of bailee is termed as particular lien. This right can be exercised when the services have been performed entirely and the remuneration has become due. Bailee's particular lien in of service may be lost if he does not complete the work within the agreed time or reasonable time.

ANALYSIS: In the present case, the jeweler has rendered services involving the exercise of labour /skill in respect of the blue sapphire. Jeweler has a right to retain such goods in his possession until he receives remuneration for the services rendered.

CONCLUSION: Thus, the jeweler is entitled to retain the bailed property.

Q.No.6. Mr. G delivered a shopkeeper to repair a watch on the payment of Rs. 100. Subsequently the shopkeeper refused to repair it for the Rs. 100 and also claimed to retain the watch until he is paid for the work done. Decide the right of G by examining the provision of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

(MTP N19 (OLD), RTP N13)

PROVISION: Sec. 170 of The Indian Contract Act 1872 lays down that where the bailee has rendered any service involving the exercise of labour /skill in respect of the goods bailed, there he has a right to retain such goods in his possession until he receives due remuneration for the services, he has rendered in respect of them. This right of bailee is termed as particular lien. This right can be exercised when the services have been performed entirely and the remuneration has become due. Bailee's particular lien in of service may be lost if he does not complete the work within the agreed time or reasonable time.

ANALYSIS: Accordingly in the given case, it is clearly expressed by the shopkeeper to repair the watch on the payment of Rs. 100. However later his refusal to repair the watch, does not complete the work for which he has promised and therefore he losses his right to exercise particular lien and nothing could be claimed under it.

CONCLUSION: Thus, the shopkeeper was not entitled to retain the watch.

Q.No.7. A, finds a horse which carries a reward of Rs.200 to the finder offered by B, the owner. A telegraphically informs B about the horse and spends Rs.15 thereon. B comes to take the horse after two days and during the intervening period A spent Rs.80 on feeding the horse. A returns the horse insisting prepayment of his lawful charges of Rs.95 and the amount of reward. Subsequently B refuses to pay. A Files a suit against B for the recovery of Rs.295. Will he succeed?

PROVISION: As per Sec 168 of the Indian Contract Act 1872, 'Finder of lost goods' has a right to retain the found goods until he recovers expenses incurred by him to preserve the goods and to find out the true owner. It may be noted that finder of goods has no right to sue the owner for such compensation. But he can exercise lien right over the found goods (Particular lien but not general lien). Further where the real owner has announced any reward, the finder is entitled to receive the reward and may retain the goods until he receives it.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION: In the present case, B, while offering the reward made a general offer which A accepted by returning the horse. A will succeed only for the recovery of reward amount i.e., Rs. 200 as there is a contract between A and B. A cannot file a suit for recovery of the expenses i.e., Rs.95 in the absence of privity of contract. Also A cannot exercise the right of lien, as possession has been lost.

Q.No.8. A the Pledgor, pledges a cinema projector and other accessories with Cine Association Co –operative Bank Limited, the Pledgee, for a loan. A requests the bank to allow the pledged goods to remain in his possession and promises to hold the same in trust for the Pledgee and further promises to handover the possession of the same to the bank whenever demanded. Examining the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 decide, whether a valid contract of pledge has been made between A, the Pledgor and Bank, the Pledgee? (OLD PM, RTP N15, M16, J 09, M17 - 4M)

PROVISION: Sec. 149 of the Act provides that the delivery of the goods to the Pledgee may be made by actual or constructive delivery. Constructive delivery means doing of any act which has the effect of putting the goods in the possession of a person who agrees to hold them as a Bailee for some other person although transfer of possession of goods does not actually take place.

ANALYSIS: In the present case, the delivery of the goods is constructive i.e. delivery by attornment to the Pledgee and the possession of the goods by A, the Pledgor is treated as possession by Pledgee, the Bank. A constructive pledge comes into existence as soon as the Pledgor, without actually delivering the goods, promises to deliver them on demand.

CONCLUSION: Therefore the above stated transaction is a valid pledge.

(OLD PM, M 08) (SIMILAR: N10, 14)

PROVISION: MORVI MERCANTILE BANK LTD. vs. UNION OF INDIA

The Supreme Court has held that the Bank (Pledgee) was entitled to recover not only to the extent of the amount of advance due to it, but the full value of consignment. However, the amount over and above his interest is to be held by him in trust for the Pledgor.

ANALYSIS: When Ravi deposited the Railway receipt, which is document of title to goods, in the bill as a security and obtained an advance of Rs.30,000, it amounted to pledge. The bank as a Pledgee has got all rights against the goods as if he is the true owner. When the railway Co. failed to deliver the goods, the Bank, as a pledgee can sue the Railway Co. not only for his interest in the goods pledged, but for all such remedies that the owner of the goods would have against them. If the amount exceeds over and above his interest it is to be held by him in trust for the Pledgor.

CONCLUSION: In the given case, the bank is entitled to recover not only the amount of advance due to it, but full value of the consignment. The excess amount if any will be held by the Banker in trust for the Pledgor i.e. Ravi.

He may retain the goods for the (i) Payment of the debt, (ii) Interest on debt and (iii) Any other expenses incurred by him in respect of the possession or for the preservation of goods pledged.

Q.No.11. X, a Doctor by the exercise of undue influence persuades Y, his patient to sell a valuable gold watch him for Rs.500. X, obtained the possession of the watch, and pledges it with Z, who does not know about the defective title of X. Is this a valid pledge?

PROVISION: As per Sec 178A of the Indian Contract Act 1872, where the Pawnor has acquired possession of pledged goods, under a voidable contract, but that contract has not been cancelled at the time of pledge, then Pawnee acquires good title to the goods, against the true owner if he satisfies following conditions - (a) he had no notice of Pawnor's defect in the title, and (b) Pawnee acts in good faith.

ANALYSIS: A Pledge by a person in possession of goods, under a Voidable contract is valid as the contract has not been rescinded before the contract of pledge and X has acted in good faith, without the notice of the Y's defect of Title.

Q.No.12. B handed her jewelry to M to value it and tell her what advance he could make on them, it being agreed that M was to keep the jewelry as security if he made the advance. On the same day M pledged the jewelry with A, a pawnbroker, who advanced Rs.1,000 in good faith. Four days later M advanced Rs.500 to B on the security of her jewelry. Subsequently on coming to know of transaction between M and A, B paid the amount she had borrowed and sued A for the recovery of her jewelry contending that when M advanced the money, no valid pledge could arise as there was no delivery of goods in pursuance of the contract of pledge and M had already parted with the possession of the goods by pledging them with A. Will B succeed?

PROVISION:

- Sec. 179 of the Contract Act, 1872, provides that, where a person pledges goods in which he has only a limited interest, the pledge is valid to the extent of that interest.
- Delivery of possession and advance need not be simultaneous and a pledge may be perfected by delivery before or after the advance is made.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION: In the present case, Delivery made four days before was a good delivery for the purpose of creating a pledge. M pledges goods in which he has only a limited interest. Pledge is valid to the extent of that interest.

No, B will not succeed as the pledge is valid. B would have succeeded had she made the payment of Rs.500 along with the interest to A instead of M because the pledge between M and A was valid only to the extent of M's interest in the jewelry, namely, Rs.500 (amount of Advance to B). Of course, on making the payment to M, B has a right to sue M for the redemption of her jewelry.
